FAULKNER PLASTIC SURGERY
AND AESTHETICS
PLASTIC SURGEON

Dr. Brent C. Faulkner, plastic surgeon at Faulkner Plastic Surgery and Aesthetics, was first drawn to his field during his last rotation in medical school. "One particular surgical case—repairing a cleft lip in an infant—had a lasting impact on my desire to pursue this field," he says. "The difference this one repair made on the lives of this infant and his parents was extraordinary."

Indeed, it is the strong relationships that Dr. Faulkner builds with patients and their family members that keeps him inspired. "The trust they put in me is humbling and motivates me to provide the best possible care," he says.

Of course, having a career that demands such precision has its challenges. Dr. Faulkner says that it is his knowledge and skill that allows him to persevere. "The art of surgery also includes recognizing when not to operate," he says. "Just because you have a surgical option does not mean it's the best option."

Overall, Dr. Faulkner says that it is his strong work ethic, excellent training, and desire to provide the best surgical care and outcomes that has led to his success. "I am deeply committed to my patients, and it's important for them to know they can trust me," he says.

Dr. Faulkner also devotes part of his surgical practice to breast cancer reconstruction. "The challenges faced by women undergoing breast cancer treatment are daunting," he says. "Being an available resource is important to me."

Looking ahead, Dr. Faulkner is excited to expand his practice while offering the latest technology in aesthetic medicine.
